PORTLAND, PRIDAY, APRIL 23, 1886. THE PENSION LEECH.

Under the name and step of justice to the soldier, the various pension acts are frequently prostituted to the relief of parasites and invoked prosecuted to the region of parasition and invocate to sustain an army of lying staters, for whose benefit the Washington claim agent has reduced the plotting and performance of perjary to a fine art. The flagrant case of Lieut, Eastwood, of the Transfer second Vantuck subject subjects and the fine art. e Twenty recond Kentucky volunteers, was recited to our dispassures of the 14th mat. Eist-wood was mastered in for thirty days service. Twenty days later claimant was allowed go home on account of library, where its remained nome on account of librar, where he committed until numbered out. He was never in action, never in the presence of the crossy, and never slept out-deers but one night. The resorbs of the adjutant-general and surgeon-general's offices show no recorded disability. The claim was not filed until 1983. I vidence returned in a subsequent examination showed that the man had rhounation before he endered the service; that in 1866 he cut himself severely with an acte, and that inter he belificant a horse and injured himself permanents. The case was jured himself permanenty. The case was slowed by Consubscoper Clark, and the man received as arrears of pension $10,155.

If this was an exceptional case it would not furnish occasion for serious alarm, but it is not exceptional. The writer served in the ranks of the Union army, and he knows of his own knowledge that since the passage of the arrears of pension act about every shirk and utterly worthless veteran of his brigade has been a succonstill applicant for a pension. In one case a wagoner, who lost his leg by tumbling off his team while helplessy drunk, was a successful applicant, on the pien that he had lost it in acswore to having received injuries in a battle at which he was not present; described his regiedge, men who escaped from service by shoot-England merchant, worth at least $50,000, who herer; was in action, who resigned after less than three months' service, has mortified his de-cent comrudes by trying to get a pension on the plea that he could trace his present condition of imperfect health to a catarrh he suffered from while in service. There is probably not an while in service. There is proteably not an bonest Union veteran who does not know of at least a half dozen cases of constitutional cowards, shirks, creatures that creep into hospitals and slink behind sand bags when their comrades crowded around the polors and charged death with a cheer, who have procured pensions for infamy by perjured proof of fictitious heroism, cluding no disability that did not date back to deprovity and dissipation in a bomb-proof at the rear rather than to disease contracted in the trenches, or while doing picket duty in the very seth and eyes of an armed chamy. It seasy to understand how a vist army of shirks in war have succeeded in larding their lean lives with penalous that are to-day denied to thousands of galant veterans, who scorn to see our imperfect proofs with perjured testimony. So gross have been the frauds under the various pension acts that there is visible a send the relaxation of the old time manly view taken by a veteran of his service. The time was when a Union veteran scomed to ask for a possion, except for disability, dearly acquired in service, which made or was likely to make him or his family de-pendent upon friends or public charity for sup-nert. The manly Union veteran fairly says hat needlessly to become a pension seeker is like a self-supporting man seeking a souphouse, wrongfully to obtain a pension is no more respectable than it is for a servant of a great corporation to rob it on the plas that a corporation has not only no soul, but no palpable body. The country lowes the Union soldier a great debt, but it is like the debt of grathinds n great deet, but it is like the dear of granting we owe great Mother Nature for flowers, for trees, for cunlight, for the song of birds, for the beauty of the earth, for the splendor of God that silvers the sea and thus the mountain with blue and gold. We cannot pay it in coin.

No pension can pay that debt; patriotic valor must ever be its own reward to a manly retoran, and the pride that comes out of this conviction makes it impossible that a decent soldier would soli his hands with a pension due him by technison in hance with a person due him by textificative of law, unless he had ceased to be saff-supporting, or saw prospect, near or remote, that he might become dependent on the bounty of the nation. We are surry to know by the testimony of Eastern papers that there are a rumber of men of ample income in New England who draw a pension, to which they have been able to establish a technical claim. In one instance, the man is worth over $300,000; is a tail, stalwart fellow, in perfect health, can fish and hunt, is fit for field service to-day. Of course and bout, is fit for field service to-day. Of course for such a man to 'draw a pension, simply because he is anxious to pot a dollar, is to soil his hands, for the idea of a pension is not to pay a a man a bounty for military service at all; it is to bein any veteran whose disability has placed him in actual or prospective need of help. The only condonation of his offense, where a soldier of ample recans had secured a pention, would ized veteran or to some G. A. R. nost. There are a good many needy veterans who are justly entitled to a peedon who cannot establish their claim for honest lack of evidence: there are a good many needy veterials, who wrought solendid service and yet heree suffered any disability upon which they could demand a persion. It would be excused be for a soldier of ample in rame to recept a previou, to which be could prove a trebuilts of each, with the intent of re-Deficiely devoling at to the alleviation of the distress or disability of a needy and worthy contrades to to the early and words contrades by to to the a first of the avery manly not upon the part of a very manly not upon the part of a very manly not upon the manipact upon the part of a velocial of any e means and in no some disabled by physical or n ental infirmity or prospective property from tak-ing one of himself. It would be about as ignation as it would be low roth must oncept a row rol-for recording pour wanter be had found, or to receive memory in acknowledgement of his cor-vice. In each to remaind your drapher from noting set or my survived in the remainder of spirit whereing he money in your face.

The Leveling person bill, endowed we are sorry to say by the G. A. R. engangment of Massachusetts, means the payment of millions of dellars to thousands of men neither disable I by infinities nor postrated by pwerty; it would mean too the payment of millions to a class of one who only went into service facilist eighteen menths of the war, because they were paid enormous bounties for culistment. Those paid enormous bourties for culistment. Those men refused to answer Lincoln's war-bug's appeal for aid, blown stendily during the darkest hours of rebellion; they never moved until large bounties tempted them under fire, even 4g the chance to piliage lured the cowardly minious of the dastard Fulstaff to skulk along the edge of civil war in England and to coquette with danger at the tail of the English army in France. The pension roll at present contains 244,000 veterans. To pass the Lovering till, giving every Union sobiler, without regard to disability, a pension, would inure chiefly to the benefit of the men who were bought up by bounties the heat eighteen months of the war, thousands of whom never were un-der fire, and thousands of whom were the worth-se or hardship suffered in service. Greece threatens war. The independence of less hard of cattle accepted by the government from substitute and bounty brokers, who sconned every spot save the instance asylum and the hospitals for the lume and blind for recruits. We strongly favor a bill which would goard a pension to any disabled veteran with a record of homorable service, as shown by his discharge, no matter whether his disability, complete or par ital, had been incurred in service or not. If he had been a faithful soldler of the Union, was in needy circumstances because of disability, let him have the same pension, that would be his

A few days ago several democratic members of congress from Missouri called upon the president to urge the dismissal of the republican United States marshal at St. Louis and the ap-pointment of a democrat in his place. They had previously sent to the president a large package of papers relating to the case. The president told the delegation very firmly that he had sat up nearly all night reading the document they had been good enough to send to him, and yet was unable to see any valid reasor. for making the change they demanded. He therefore would decline to do it. The spoilshunters got out of the White house as soon as possible, and found the air outside much less heavy and oppressive. There is ermething in this argument, unquestionably, but we cannot believe that the advantages underlike proposed system would equal the dis-advantages. With a multitude of petty officials there would certainly be much inefficiency. This consideration, with the tendency to under-valuation of assessments inherent in the system.
